Here is a collection of some of the most beautiful and romantic love poems for married couples:

"A Lifetime of Love" by Robert Browning

Grow old along with me! The best is yet to be, The last of life, for which the first was made: Our times are in His hand Who saith "A whole I planned, Youth shows but half; trust God: see all, nor be afraid!"

This poem is a beautiful expression of the enduring love that grows stronger with time. Browning's words remind us that the best is yet to come, and that our love will continue to blossom in the years ahead.

"The Sonnet of Love" by Elizabeth Barrett Browning

How do I love thee? Let me count the ways. I love thee to the depth and breadth and height My soul can reach, when feeling out of sight For the ends of being and ideal grace.

This iconic sonnet is a timeless masterpiece that captures the boundless nature of love. Browning's words are filled with passion, devotion, and an overwhelming sense of gratitude for the love of her life.

"To My Beloved" by John Keats

My heart aches, and a drowsy numbness pains My sense, as though of hemlock I had drunk, Or emptied some dull opiate to the drains One minute past, and Lethe-wards had sunk:

Keats' poem is a passionate and sensual expression of longing and desire. He writes of the overwhelming power of love, which can make the heart ache and the senses numb.

"When I Am Old" by A.E. Housman

When I am old and full of sleep, And gather to the quiet wood, When I have ceased to feel or weep, And slumber settles on my mood;

Housman's poem is a poignant and reflective piece that explores the enduring power of love beyond the bounds of life. He writes of the hope that his love will continue to watch over him even when he is gone.

"Love And Marriage" by Langston Hughes

Love is not love which alters when it alteration finds, Or bends with the remover to remove: O no! it is an ever-fixed mark, That looks on tempests, and is never shaken;

Hughes' poem is a powerful and timeless meditation on the enduring nature of love. He writes of a love that is constant and unchanging, despite the challenges and obstacles that life may bring.

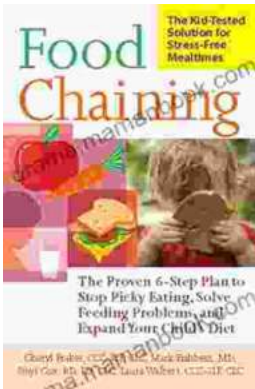

These are just a few examples of the many beautiful and romantic love poems that have been written for married couples. Whether you are looking for a poem to express your love and appreciation, or simply a way to celebrate the special bond that you share, these poems can help you find the perfect words to express your heart's desires.
